The exhibition served as a platform for a noble initiative aimed at empowering students and fostering their creative talents. The Alumni Association took the commendable step of providing training to current students in crafting market-ready handmade products. This initiative aims to equip students with practical skills that can potentially lead to self-employment opportunities, enhancing their career prospects.

A heartening aspect of this endeavour was the active involvement of the Alumni Association members, who volunteered their time, expertise, and mentorship to guide students toward achieving excellence in their craft. Their dedication and commitment to nurturing the next generation of artisans were truly inspiring. The exhibition not only celebrated the creativity and craftsmanship of our alumni but also demonstrated the spirit of giving back to the alma mater, promoting the growth and development of future generations.
